Demonstration – Upside down Salt Shaker

Chip Siskey demonstrated turning an upside down salt shaker based on a Dennis Liggett design. Chip recommends a low odor wood such as Maple so no unusual flavor is imparted on the salt.

The basic design is a domed cylinder internally with an inverted funnel glued in. The critical dimension are a 1/8 inch hole in the funnel and 1/2 inch clearance between the tip of the funnel and the dome.

He roughed a cylinder with a tenon for the body. The outside of the body can be any shape desired. The remaining piece was turned into a funnel that would fit into a groove in the bottom of the body and provide about 1/2 inch clearance to the dome center.
